STATE OF MISSOURI, ss. I, Geo. W. Murphy, Judge of the Probate Court within and for Holt County, Missouri, do hereby certify that the above and foregoing is a full, true and complete copy of the Probate Settlement Docket for the May Term, A. D. 1908, of said court, as the same appears of record in my office.

Witness my hand as Judge, and the seal of said court. Done at office in Oregon (SEAL) this 24th day of April, 1908.

GEO. W. MURPHY,
Judge of Probate Court.

Are You Interested in Livestock?

When The New York Tribune Association six years ago decided to establish the New York Tribune Farmer, a non-political, national journal, to be devoted to every branch of agriculture and other interests of the farmer and his family in every part of the country, men of the highest authority in every branch of farm work and farm experience were consulted as to writers who services it would be most desirable to secure.

When the late Dr. J. C. Currier, of Minnesota, the author of "Horse Sense," was asked to name the best writers on horses and on veterinary practice he named only one: "Dr. C. D. Smead, living in Logan N. Y., is just the one you want—if you can get him." Dr. Currier's opinion proved him as good a judge of men as of horses.

Dr. Smead undertook the work of answering not only veterinary questions, but all reasonable queries in regard to the breeding, the care and the feeding of all domestic animals; he taught how to keep them well and that beasts seldom need medicine if properly looked after. Not the questions alone profited by Dr. Smead's department, the value of which received immediate and extended recognition. There is a good reason for this.

Dr. Smead didn't take up his profession as an easy way of earning a living. He has been a practical farmer and livestock breeder from his youth. He loves animals and is unhappy when they suffer or fail in health, so many years ago he decided to learn how to care for and cure them; he dropped work, took a course and became a doctor himself—not for the money he might earn but for the sake of the neglected and suffering animals. And he didn't stop studying when he left the school; he has studied books, reports, and, better still, the animals themselves every day since. No wonder he succeeds and is to day, largely on account of his work in the New York Tribune Farmer, the best known veterinary surgeon in America.—The Sentinel and Tribune Farmer $1.75.

Executor's Notice.

Notice is hereby given. That Letters of Administration on the estate of Patrick Fitzmaurice, deceased, have been granted to the undersigned, by the Probate Court of Holt County, Missouri, bearing date the 9th day of September, 1907.

All persons having claims against said Estate, are required to exhibit them to me for allowance within one year from the date of said letters, or they may be precluded from any benefit of such estate; and if said claims be not exhibited within two years from the date of the publication of this notice, they shall be forever barred.

MARY A. FITZMAURICE, Executor.

CHARITY IN CHILDISH HEART.

Bright Spot Too Infrequently Found by Workers Among the Poor.

"Here's one of the bright spots in charity work," Agent Gustav Frelson said one afternoon recently to a Milwaukee Free Press reporter as he handed out a letter he had just received.

The superscription on the envelope read:

"Dear Mailman, please give this to Mr. Frilson of the Poor, from Billy Unerti." and it was written in childish characters, painfully precise. This is the letter:

"Dear Mr. Frilson, please give this to that poor lady on fifth street for Billy; that one that had to send her boy out to steal milk and rolls.

"My mama just read about a poor family who had nothing to eat and had to send their boy out barefooted to steal milk and I felt so sorry for you that I will send you one dollar which my uncle George sent me for candy. you can buy something to eat. my mama will send you something to eat and some clothes so I thought you would be very happy if I send you the money. I wish your mother would send us that little baby for I am sure that we would be good to it. My little sister would be glad to play with her. Let me know how much you want for it. I will save all my bank money to buy it if you will come to-morrow we will give you some shoes too wear. Call at 2124 Cold Spring avenue and ask for Billy.

"P. S.—Just send your boy to my house every morning and he can steal our milk and rolls if he wants to. Mama won't care."

A dollar bill was inclosed.

HIS METHODS GOT THE MONEY.

Portland Character a Very Effective Bill Collector.

A queer old character who in his 85 years of life had been cursed probably more than any other man in Portland, Ore., was buried in the potter's field a short time ago, although Sir William McDonald of Toronto, Ontario, a wealthy manufacturer, is his brother. The dead man is "Jimmie" McDonald, who for the last 20 years had kept body and soul together from small commissions in collecting dead-beat bills.

McDonald's age and general disreputable appearance naturally prevented him from using the methods of present-day collectors, but he got the money oftener than any of them. His system was to stand in front of the house or office of the debtor and ring a cow bell. Pedestrians would stop in wonderment. Others would come strolling up, thinking an auction was to take place. Meanwhile McDonald would nonchalantly ring the bell till some one would inquire the cause.

"Oh," he would reply, "there's a man in there who owes a bill and is trying to beat 't."

Another of his terrifying methods was to hail debtors when out in company, singing this unpoetical distich: "The judgment day is drawing nigh, And unless you pay every bill you owe, You can never wear a golden crown."

Many times he was trounced, but times without number he got the money.

Never Had His Hair Cut.

This town boasts a modern day Samson, in an eccentric old man, who, like the hero of old, has never permitted his hair to be trimmed, says a dispatch from Maple Falls, Wash., to the New York American. He wears long locks which hang nearly to the ground. He is a powerfully built man and stands six feet five inches. The man is John Fitzpatrick, 75 years of age, and who, though so old, can lift a barrel of salt, weighing 70 pounds, at arm's length over his head.

One of his recent feats of strength was at the Yakima county fair when, in the presence of many persons, he picked up a granite boulder which, when previously weighed, tipped the scales at 450 pounds. He raised the huge oblong stone in his arms, carried it 40 feet, and loaded it into a wagon-box with no assistance.

Must Be Done Grammatically.

She was a Brookline girl (just outside of Boston, you know), and when her steady company, while parting with her at the gate one evening, blurted out the question: "Can I kiss you?" she looked him calmly and reprovingly in the eye and responded: "Possibly you can, but I should hope you are not going to attempt it without first asking if you may."—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

"Abe's" Duty to His Mother.

"Abe had a powerful good memory. He'd go to church an' come home an' say over the sermon as good as the preacher. He'd often do it for Aunt Sally, when she couldn't go, an' she said it was just as good as goin' herself. He'd say over everything from beloved brethren to amen without crackin' a smile, pass a pewter plate for a collection, an' then we'd all join him in singin' the doxology. Aunt Sally thought a heap o' Abe, an' he did o' her, an' I reckon they'd 'a' done most anything fur one another."
